On 10 June 1955, a KVP lieutenant of the district registration office Potsdam-Stadt recruited for the KVP at the construction site of Bau-Union Potsdam -(BUP) Pfingstberg. Ten of the 70 young men employed at the site stated that they will be prepared to join the KVP. Those who wanted to join the KVP had to sign that they would pass their final examination as apprentices on 15 June 1955. They were scheduled to be drafted to the KVP prior to late June 1955. Persons serving a two-year term of service were guaranteed preferential vocational training by a decree of the Ministry of the Interior. Persons fit for military service who refused to join the KVP would not be admitted to vocational schools and have vocational courses following this decree.
